One dark stormy night, when Sam couldn't sleep,
Her mum suggested, "Try counting some sheep."

For my very own flock, James, Lochie, Calum and Caitlin

For Eleri, River, and Ewan the sheep, who helps us all get some sleep

Sam closed her eyes and pictured a flock,
But the white, woolly sheep were running... AMOK!

"Please stop, please stop! Slow down, slow down!
I cannot sleep with you clowning around."

They all baa-ed and bleated, then one sheep made sense.
“Little Shap,” he said, “can’t jump over the fence.”

“He’s too small, you see, and the fence is too high.
But I’ve had an idea, we can see if he’ll fly!”

They huddled together and built him some wings,
Out of feathers and sticks, paper,
glue and string.

But as hard as he tried to fly through the air,
His hooves wouldn't move and Shep went nowhere.

Another sheep said, "Instead of two wings,
let's strap to his hooves four extra-large springs.
He can bounce up and down, right over the fence.
We'll use this old wire."

Shep gulped and looked tense.
