

Clean and Dirty

“Wash those hands for 20 seconds, use soap, remember your thumbs.”

Handwashing is important, especially when we’ve been out to play. But did you know that zebras get clean by rolling in dust? Discover nature’s ingenious ways of grooming, cleaning and protecting ourselves from bugs and the sun.

Clean and Dirty celebrates both messy play and good hygiene as skills we need to survive and thrive. Come explore how getting dirty can be good clean fun!

I love to get messy,

I like to squish and feel,

Some things need a
poke and a taste –
Just to be sure that they are real.

This seems to stress the adults out,
“Stop touching and please do not lick!”

Those wipes seem such a waste of time,
When a quick spit also does the trick.

Cats use their tongues to smarten up,
A few long licks and they are done!

Cats spend a quarter of their waking hours licking themselves.
Little spines on their tongues deal easily with knots.

Kangaroos soak
their arms in spit
To stay cool under the hot sun.

Red kangaroos soak
their forearms in saliva,
which evaporates to keep them cool.

A dripping nose brings
out the tissues,
When a sleeve would do me just fine.
